Patrolmen Favor Wage Referendum; To Secure Attorney

'Personal Campaign' Begins to Force Showdown on Salaries; Many at Meeting

The Kingston Patrolmen's Association went on record last night as unanimously favoring a municipal referendum next fall on the question of salary increases for members of the Kingston Police Department.

Edward J. Leonard, president of the K.P.A., said last night's meeting was the best attended function of the association in the past several months. He said the policemen demonstrated tremendous enthusiasm for the proposed salary increase drive and voted unanimously to proceed with an active campaign to effect salary hikes.

The group appointed Patrolman Kenneth Hyatt as publicity director for the drive and decided to secure the services of an attorney for legal matters which might be involved in the procedure.

Requests of the Kingston Patrolmen's Association for salary increases made earlier in the year have so far brought no positive action on the part of the city administration. President Leonard said he pointed out that at the last meeting of the Common Council it was suggested that a committee investigate into the matter of ascertaining if there were any surpluses on hand in city departments which could be allocated to salary boosts for the policemen.

The K.P.A. has not been advised that any such action has been taken, it was reported. Last night's action by the policemen indicates that they will wage an intensive personal campaign to force a showdown on the salary issue. Several members were of the opinion that a municipal referendum is the only solution to the salary problem.

Manufacturer Takes Office in Hoboken Ruled by One Man 21 Years

Hoboken, N. J., May 21 (AP)—A mild-mannered 49-year-old manufacturer, Fred M. De Sapo, took over today in the well-grooved steel chair where Bernard McFeeley ruled as mayor of Hoboken for 21 years.

McFeeley, political ally of Jersey City's Mayor Frank Hague, vacated the seat yesterday and stepped quickly from a side-door exit at the flag-draped city hall where some 10,000 persons cheered the arrival of the new mayor and city commission.

For the 61-year-old McFeeley, it was the end of a 40-year record in the public payroll climaxed now by his ouster by a "reform" Fusionist government and his indictment by a grand jury on a charge of conspiring to oppress 18 "labeled" policemen who allegedly refused to follow administration dictates.

A majority of the voters at the last annual school meeting requested the public discussion, suggesting that it take place prior to the next yearly session on July 8.

More than 200 ex-servicemen from both World Wars attended Tuesday night's meeting of Kingston Post, 150, American Legion, and heard Attorney James G. Connelly, nominated for commander next year.

The large turnout of veterans enjoyed an elaborate social program, featuring refreshments and the screening of the Normandy invasion, which took more than an hour to show.

Nomination of Legionnaire Connelly for leadership of Kingston Post was accompanied by a recommendation citing the various services he had rendered to the organization, demonstrating his vital interest in veterans' affairs.

The candidate for commander was in service 56 months. During his tour of duty overseas, Major Connelly was assistant staff judge advocate with the European Division, Air Transport Command.

Veterans suggested for office represent World War 1 and World War 2 men.

Although the nominations were made last night, Legionnaires have the privilege of proposing candidates from the floor at the June meeting if they so desire. It was pointed out that this is one of the democratic policies of the organization.

Telephone Dispute Virtually Ends as 20,000 Resume Jobs

First Nationwide Strike Has Only Two Points of Holdout; 340,000 Idle at one Time

Washington, May 21 (AP)—The return to work today of 20,000 Western Electric installation workers virtually winds up this country's first nationwide telephone strike.

Only two disputes—between the Western Electric Company and equipment workers at Point Breeze, Md., and Lincoln, Neb., remain of the scores which brought on the walkout April 7.

At one time 340,000 persons were idle, but that number shrank fast in the past two weeks, after four independent unions in New York city settled for a $4 weekly pay increase.

The installation men, employed in 42 states and able to keep other telephone workers from their jobs by picketing major exchanges, settled with the Bell System's Western Electric subsidiary yesterday under government conciliation pressure.

Like many others among the National Federation of Telephone Workers and independent unionists, made idle by the strike, they also were back to work today.

Ulster Health Report Reveals 30,000 Vaccinated in County

The April report of the Ulster County Health Department reveals. The report just released states that it is certain now that there will be no further development of the disease.

Since the New York outbreak approximately 30,000 people of the county were vaccinated and additional reports will still come in from physicians.

The special clinics for smallpox vaccinations have been discontinued and vaccination against smallpox as well as diphtheria and whooping cough immunizations will be performed every Monday from 4 to 5 p. m. at the Kingston Health Center on East O'Reilly street. Additional

Senator Millikin Says Opponents of Cut Won't Be Able to Block Bill

May Delay Vote

Postponement Motion May Be Put Off Ten Days

Washington, May 21 (AP)—With the Senate ready to open debate on the House-approved $4,000,000,000 income tax cut, the telephone industry asked Congress today to repeal the excise levies on communications.

This would save taxpayers another $400,000,000. The excise is levied on telephone, telegraph and other communications service.

The recommendation was placed before the House Ways and Means Committee in statements submitted by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, A. T. & T.'s associated companies, and the United States Independent Telephone Association.

It was the first recommendation for a new tax cut in the committee's move toward general revisions of the tax structure, which Chairman Knutson (R-Minn.) said should mean "substantial" tax reductions beyond the current $4,000,000,000 bill. The committee plans to write the general revisions into law next year.

The telephone industry asked that the communications excise repeal be made a part of the 1948 revision. The industry described this excise as a tax upon a necessary business and social service and not a "luxury" tax.

Won't Be High Enough

Meanwhile, in the Senate, Senator Millikin (R-Colo.) predicted that opponents of a 1917 income tax cut will reach their "high water mark" on a postponement vote—but that the mark won't be high enough to block the tax slash.

Millikin said the decision on a Democrat-sponsored motion to postpone consideration of the bill until June 10 will be "the crucial vote" he also expressed perfect confidence that the motion will be defeated.

Democratic strategists expect to pick up several Republican votes while holding all their own. Even though the present membership lineup stands at 59 Republicans and 41 Democrats, Senator Lucas of Illinois, the Democratic whip, contended there is "an excellent chance" the postponement motion will carry.

Senator George of Georgia, ranking Democrat on the committee, and other Democrats contended that the communications excise look at the spending prospects before it passes on a tax cut, and say that all the major money bills should have cleared the House Appropriations Committee by June 10.

While both Millikin and George said the postponement motion probably would be voted upon tomorrow, Lucas thought it would be delayed until Friday or even Monday.

'Personal Business' Is Given as Reason; Was for More Money for Police

The resignation of E. Frank Flanagan, ranking Democratic member of the Board of Police Commissioners was confirmed at noon today by Mayor William F. Edelmuth.

Simultaneously, the mayor announced the appointment of John J. Schwalbach, of 149 Greenkill avenue. Mr. Schwalbach, a lieutenant in the U. S. Navy during the war, holds an executive position with the Texas Oil Company, and was formerly a member of the Zoning Board.

The mayor said Mr. Flanagan's letter of resignation which he received in the morning mail gave as the reason for the unexpected resignation "the pressure of personal business."

Served Five Years

Mr. Flanagan has been a member of the Board of Police Commissioners for five years. He was appointed by Mayor Edelmuth.

Although Mr. Flanagan's resignation had been rumored for some time, it never materialized but it is a coincidence that it was announced during the heated controversy over the proposed salary raise for the city's patrolmen.

It is known that Mr. Flanagan was sympathetic to the policemen's campaign for higher salaries.

Mr. Flanagan's term was due to expire May 1, 1948.

Other members of the police board, in addition to Mayor Edelmuth and Chief of Police Ernest Boss, are Willis R. Locke, William Singer and Stephen D. Hildebrandt.

'Soft Spots' Are Seen in Industry

Decline in Employment, Construction Lag Are Watched Closely

Washington, May 21 (AP)—The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported today that an April decline in industrial employment and a poor showing in the construction field "point to soft spots in our economy which will need careful watching."

The slump in factory jobs was the first since the reconversion low in February, 1946, said a report by B.L.S. Commissioner Ewan Clague.

He blamed "resistance to high prices" for a "disappointing" rise in construction, where sharp gains had been expected.

Clague did not join those economists who predict that a recession soon will bring widespread unemployment.

"We are on a crest, but the crest may be a plateau on which we may stay for some time—perhaps a year or two," Clague told reporters following issuance of a new B.L.S. monthly report on employment.

"More industries are reaching their temporary saturation point—the point where they will have to readjust to a more normal post-war market."

Manufacturing employment fell off 140,000 in April, the B.L.S. report showed. Total non-farm employment declined 358,000, but this figure included the soft coal miners' "safety stoppage" and persons idled by the telephone strike. Farm employment rose by some 500,000.

The falling-off in factory jobs showed up mainly in the "soft goods"—textiles, apparel, tobacco, leather and rubber.

It added the upturn in building employment was about 106,000 in

Gilligan, Egan Have Hot Word Battle Hundreds Meet in Protest

Woodstock, May 21 — Several hundred indignant Woodstockers gathered in the Town Hall Wednesday night to protest State Commissioner of Education Francis T. Spaulding's edict of "choosing between a three-town centralization or no centralization." It was decided to form a committee to exert every effort towards the defeat of the three-township centralization which would include Woodstock, Olive and Shandaken.

Walter S. VanWagonen, principal of the Woodstock school, having been nominated chairman, promptly opened the meeting, by calling on Warren Hutt, a member of the board of trustees of the Woodstock school, for a resume of the work which has been done over a period of years in trying to solve the school problems in this village.

Mr. Hutt first dealt with the question of township boundaries and explained that "it covers an area of approximately 12 miles East and West, and seven to eight miles North and South and includes Zena, Woodstock village, Bearsville, Shady, Wittenberg, Lake Hill and Willow, all having district schools with one trustee excepting Woodstock village which has three trustees. Although separate taxes are levied for the local support of each of these schools, there is but one fire district and one town board which is indicative of the kind of cooperation which exists in this township."

The school districts were laid out in 1812 and have stayed that way ever since. Very minor changes, if any, have been made over this long period.

Says Costs Too High

The matter of state aid to the rural districts was covered by Mr. Hutt but he stated "as times changed it became obvious that the cost of rural education was too high per pupil for the good educational money was doing."

He cited the case of Shandaken where they habitually have only two or three students at a "ridiculously high cost per student."

The increase in cost of education in the village of Woodstock was evidenced by the fact that while in 1927, $3,000 was raised for school purposes, it is now necessary to raise nearly $18,000 per year.

As a Township, are no longer a rural community, since there are comparatively few farms in the entire township," continued Mr. Hutt. "Woodstock village instead of having two rooms in 1927, now has five and employs five teachers. The village district has an assessed value of nearly $900,000 and has one-half the pupils in the township."

"Beginning in 1928, the number of pupils in the Woodstock school increased steadily and it was necessary to provide for them. We were prevented, by regulations established by the Department of Education, from adding to the original building and it was, therefore, necessary to build another one room school at a cost of approximately $5,000.00. Shortly thereafter it became necessary to have additional space in the village and we rented a converted garage of two rooms for which

Cement Halt Nears End, Agent Says

Howard Powell Says Men Probably May Return Soon to Jobs

The three-week old cement strike that has paralyzed cement production along the eastern seaboard is apparently well on its way to an amicable settlement, Howard Rowell, business agent for District 8 of the United Cement, Lime & Gypsum Workers Union told the Freeman today.

Rowell returned from a trip to Allentown, Penna., where he conferred with representatives of other districts on the strike settlement situation.

Union members of District 8 were in conference throughout the morning and from 2 to 4 this afternoon at the Saultpaugh Hotel in Catskill, carefully outlining contract specifications and technical clauses which will be submitted to the various cement company officials in the near future for approval.

Original demands by the Union are still essentially in effect, said Rowell, and especially so in the "back house" clause which stipulates that no overtime shift work will exist.

Agent Rowell is confident that negotiations will soon be resumed and differences ironed out, enabling the men to go back to their jobs shortly.

It is rumored that three of the Lehigh Cement plants have already resumed operations according to Union contracts.

Dwight McEntee, chairman of the recent Y.M.C.A. financial drive, announced Tuesday night that additional gifts have increased the fund obtained to $18,040. It also was stated that the June 17 meeting would be the annual session at which time officers will be elected in addition to several directors.

Union Spokesman Says Ford Production Is to Feel Walkout in 10 Days

Detroit, May 21 (AP)—An estimated 3,800 foremen began a strike at the Ford Motor Co. at 10 a. m. today.

The company said its Rouge and Lincoln plants were first affected. There was no immediate report on the Highland Park unit. All are in the Detroit area.

Initial reports indicated the strike affected only Detroit plants. There was no immediate comment from the company after the Foreman's Association of America, (Ind.) ordered its members off the job. A later statement was promised.

Robert H. Keys, president of the union, said the strike received unanimous approval of the Ford chapter of the F.A.A. Tuesday night.

A spokesman for the union predicted that the walkout would halt auto production at Ford "within 10 days."

The F.A.A. filed its strike notice April 17 and the 30-day waiting period, which expired Saturday, was extended to permit a conference with company officials earlier this week.

A contract between the company and the independent union was terminated almost simultaneously by both sides early in April. Ford later offered a one-year renewal of the pact.

Keys outlined the chief issues at dispute as raiding of ranks of the unionized foremen at Ford, failure to equalize the wage structure, recognition, shift differentials and overtime pay, and what he labeled "arbitrary actions of the company."

Keys said picket lines would be established "for supervisory employees only" and that C.I.O. United Auto Workers in the three Ford plants here would not be asked to respect them.

The union leader said Henry Ford II took part in a two-hour conference Tuesday that ended in a deadlock.

He said the company demanded a renewal of the old contract "with no amendments" for one year, while the F.A.A. insisted upon certain alterations in the terms.

Senator Millikin Says Opponents of Cut Won't Be Able to Block Bill

May Delay Vote

Postponement Motion May Be Put Off Ten Days

Washington, May 21 (AP)—With the Senate ready to open debate on the House-approved $4,000,000,000 income tax cut, the telephone industry asked Congress today to repeal the excise levies on communications.

This would save taxpayers another $400,000,000. The excise is levied on telephone, telegraph and other communications service.

The recommendation was placed before the House Ways and Means Committee in statements submitted by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, A. T. & T.'s associated companies, and the United States Independent Telephone Association.

It was the first recommendation for a new tax cut in the committee's report toward general revisions of the tax structure, which Chairman Knutson (R-Minn.) said should mean "substantial" tax reductions beyond the current $4,000,000,000 bill. The committee plans to write the general revisions into law next year.

The telephone industry asked that the communications excise repealer be made a part of the 1948 revision. The industry described this excise as a tax upon a necessary business and social service and not a "luxury" tax.

Won't Be High Enough

Meanwhile, in the Senate, Senator Millikin (R-Colo.) predicted that opponents of a 1947 income tax cut will reach their "high water mark" on a postponement vote—but that the mark won't be high enough to block the tax slash.

Millikin said the decision on a Democrat-sponsored motion to postpone consideration of the bill until June 10 will be "the crucial vote." He also expressed perfect confidence that the motion will be defeated.

Democratic strategists expect to pick up several Republican votes while holding all their own. Even though the present membership lineup stands at 51 Republicans and 44 Democrats, Senator Lucas of Illinois, the Democratic whip, contended there is "an excellent chance" the postponement motion will carry.

Senator George of Georgia, ranking Democrat on the committee, and other Democrats contend that Congress should have a good look at the spending prospects before it passes on a tax cut, and say that all the major money bills should have cleared the House Appropriations Committee by June 10.

While both Millikin and George said the postponement motion probably would be voted upon tomorrow, Lucas thought it would be delayed until Friday or even Monday.

SAFE DRIVING PLEDGE

Aggressive action to reduce sharply the number of motor vehicle accidents in which U. S. Army motor vehicles are involved has been announced at First Army Headquarters, Governors Island.

A safe driving pledge which emphasizes ten cardinal points of safety in the operation of a motor vehicle will be signed by all military and civilian personnel.

If the safety driving pledge, which acknowledges responsibility for the operator's safety and for the safety of others while driving a vehicle, is carried out by drivers of all vehicles there will be a big reduction in the appalling toll of deaths on our highways today.

The pledge follows:
Practice good sportsmanship by courteous driving and by always giving the other fellow an even break.

Watch for the mistakes of other drivers and pedestrians and do everything I can to compensate for their unsafe acts.

Not drive "too fast for conditions," and will always control my vehicle so it can be stopped before striking any other vehicle, pedestrian or object.

Always drive in the proper traffic lane and give advance warning signals before passing, turning or stopping.

Not pass other vehicles in an intersection, or while on or approaching a hill or curve.

Always use my low headlight beam at night when meeting oncoming vehicles.

Slow down at night, at all times while driving through towns and villages.

Reduce speed and use extreme caution on wet or icy pavement.

Not drive while under the influence of intoxicating liquors.

Be particularly cautious when approaching or passing children, cyclists and aged pedestrians.

It is a little early to start the great American game of selecting and electing the next President; but already the hounds are baying and the experts are rallying.

WHAT THE CONSUMER WANTS

A recent survey of customer desires throughout the nation revealed that the public believes that prices should be lower and quality should be higher. There is nothing surprising in this. All of us would like to get more for our money. We yearn for a Utopia in which we earn 1947 incomes and buy at 1935 price level. That idea is beyond realization. However, both manufacturers and retailers declare they are working hard to do something constructive about the price-quality problem.

The "boom and bust" operators whose idea is to squeeze out every possible nickel while the going is good are rapidly disappearing, due to consumer resistance on the one hand and to constantly increase competition by reputable concerns on the other. This is especially true in all retail fields now that stocks are building up and most scarcities are ending.

The organized drive by the retailers to bring prices down is an encouraging sign. Success will depend upon full, intelligent cooperation between business, labor and the consumer.

The worst thing about this Greek business is its pronunciation.

WHAT LUCK!

Collecting four-leaf and more-leaf clovers is said to be the hobby of a Farmer City, Ill., woman. She has 264, including one with six leaves. At least it provides plenty of fresh air. She also can testify if anyone can as to the truth of the old belief that finding four-leaf clovers bring good luck.

The results of her investigations have not come this way as yet. Undoubtedly the clovers are at least as lucky as seeing the new moon over the left shoulder or finding a penny on the sidewalk.

If you have dice to spare, Johns Hopkins University would like them. Not that the university catalogue's list of courses will

'These Days'

By George E. Sokolsky

THE QUEBEC CONFERENCE

A reader of this column wrote to the White House and received a reply from Walter Walkinshaw, Chief, Public Liaison and Inquiries Section, Division of Public Liaison, Department of State, as follows:

"This Government's policy towards Germany remains based upon the Agreement reached at Potsdam on August 2, 1945, by President Truman, Prime Minister Attlee and Generalissimo Stalin for the control of Germany. The Agreement, therefore, takes precedence over the directive, referred to by Mr. Sokolsky as JCS 1067, which was originally issued in April of that year to General Eisenhower as Commander-in-Chief of United States Forces of Occupation. This Government has never adopted any so-called 'Morgenthau Plan' for the treatment of Germany and the statements quoted by Mr. Sokolsky in his article appear neither in the directive to General Eisenhower nor in the Potsdam Agreement.

Mr. Walkinshaw's reply is not an error. It is literally untrue as I shall show. The evidence:

1. Henry Morgenthau, in September, 1944, was requested by President Roosevelt "to outline . . . a program for the treatment of Germany after her defeat." Although rightly such a plan should have come from the Secretary of State, Cordell Hull, or the Secretary of War, Henry Stimson, it was Morgenthau who went to Quebec with Roosevelt. Morgenthau prepared and presented a memorandum entitled, "Program to Prevent Germany from Starting a World War III." This program calls for . . . completely disarming the German Army and people (including the removal or destruction of all war material), the total destruction of the whole German armament industry, and the removal or destruction of other key industries which are basic to military strength.

2. At the Quebec Conference, the following memorandum was introduced by Franklin D. Roosevelt and Winston Churchill, dated September 15, 1944:

"At a conference between the President and the Prime Minister upon best measures to prevent renewed rearmament by Germany, it was felt that an essential feature was the future disposition of the Ruhr and the Saar.

The cases with which the metallurgical, chemical and electric industries in Germany can be converted from peace to war has been impressed on us by bitter experience. The Germans devastated a large portion of the industries of Russia and other neighboring allies, and it is only justice that these injured countries be entitled to remove machinery they require, to repair losses suffered. The industries in the Ruhr and the Saar would therefore be necessary, but out of action, closed down. The districts should be put under some body under the World Organization which would supervise dismantling the industries, and make sure they are not started up again by some subterfuge.

"This program looks forward to converting Germany into a country principally agricultural and pastoral.

"The Prime Minister and the President were in agreement on this."

(Initialed O.K. W.S.C. F.D.R.)

3. A Directive was issued in April, 1945, by the Joint Chiefs of Staff to the Commander in Chief of the United States Forces of Occupation referred to as JCS 1067. This follows rigidly the Morgenthau Plan and the Quebec Memorandum. In Publication 2631, issued by the Department of State and for sale by the Superintendent of Documents, beginning on Page 56, as appendix C, appears JCS 1067 (probably in part). Although this book is not dated, material in it is dated as late as July 11, 1946, and therefore it is subsequent to Potsdam, which occurred in July-August, 1945. Thus, about a year after Potsdam, the State Department itself says:

"The fundamental documents concerning economic and financial aspects of United States policy toward Germany are the directive issued in April, 1945, by the Joint Chiefs of Staff to the Commander in Chief of United States Forces of Occupation (later referred to as JCS 1067) and the Potsdam Agreement announced the following August. . . .

4. Further corroborative evidence is the publication of JCS 1067 in a State Department booklet, "The Axis in Defeat," p. 40, containing documents in question.

Anyone who will take the trouble to study the documents will find:

1. The Morgenthau Plan was adopted at Quebec;
2. It is the basis for JCS 1067;
3. It was not superseded at Potsdam;
4. It was effective three months after in Germany when I was last able to check through direct evidence.

Because cancer causes so many deaths, despite the fact that thousands of research workers are patiently seeking the cause, many may feel discouraged about the future outlook of cancer and other medical problems. However, one look back over the past 25 years should encourage everybody, as we realize that two deadly enemies of mankind, diabetes and pernicious anemia, are now under control. And still another great achievement has been the shock treatment for mental ailments as, previous to this discovery, it was estimated that within 50 years, one half of the population of the world would be needed to look after the other half because of mental disease.

One of the meanest ailments that afflicts mankind and has become increasingly common before, during and since World War II, is peptic ulcer—ulcer of the stomach and first part of small intestine into which the stomach empties. While infection is partly the cause in some cases, nervousness and emotional disturbances is considered the underlying cause, in most cases. Sovereign of the nation, and therefore so feared that the patient becomes greatly run-down in general health and must follow a strict diet to keep free of symptoms. Formerly, an operation was considered the best treatment, but today an operation is used only where obstruction is present. And our research workers have found methods of treatment that have restored these sufferers to health and happiness. One of these methods is the use of amino acids of which we are hearing and reading so much. Amino acids are derived from protein products; protein is the food element in meat, fish, milk and cheese.

In the "New York State Journal of Medicine," Drs. W. F. Ruggiero, F. Cotul, and A. A. Bianco report results obtained by use of protein hydrolysates in 134 patients with peptic ulcer. Further nourishment was given in the form of dextrose. In the 134 cases treated, there were 16 failures. One hundred and eighteen patients no longer had any symptoms caused by peptic ulcer. They gained weight. If underweight at the start of the treatment, their strength and desire for work increased. Sleeplessness and general weakness disappeared.

No man can write a program that would quickly reduce to the prewar figure the rarity of railroad wrecks in the United States.

But most of the men who operate the railroads have done absolutely nothing to abate the smash-ups which, since the war and especially in the last few months, have made a dangerous adventure of an experience which had been almost entirely relieved of risk. They clear away the wreckage, their claimants and lawyers quietly call on the courts for a verdict, and the railroad is back to work. The crash is a part of the business, and it is only justice that these injured countries be entitled to remove machinery they require, to repair losses suffered. The industries in the Ruhr and the Saar would therefore be necessary, but out of action, closed down. The districts should be put under some body under the World Organization which would supervise dismantling the industries, and make sure they are not started up again by some subterfuge.

While infection is partly the cause in some cases, nervousness and emotional disturbances is considered the underlying cause, in most cases. Sovereign of the nation, and therefore so feared that the patient becomes greatly run-down in general health and must follow a strict diet to keep free of symptoms. Formerly, an operation was considered the best treatment, but today an operation is used only where obstruction is present. And our research workers have found methods of treatment that have restored these sufferers to health and happiness. One of these methods is the use of amino acids of which we are hearing and reading so much. Amino acids are derived from protein products; protein is the food element in meat, fish, milk and cheese.

In the "New York State Journal of Medicine," Drs. W. F. Ruggiero, F. Cotul, and A. A. Bianco report results obtained by use of protein hydrolysates in 134 patients with peptic ulcer. Further nourishment was given in the form of dextrose. In the 134 cases treated, there were 16 failures. One hundred and eighteen patients no longer had any symptoms caused by peptic ulcer. They gained weight. If underweight at the start of the treatment, their strength and desire for work increased. Sleeplessness and general weakness disappeared.

'Reciprocity' Is One Word Russians Should Know and Use in Their Daily Lives

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, May 21—"Reciprocity" is probably a difficult word to translate into Russian but surely some ingenious person familiar with the intricacies of the Russian language should be able to do it.

For there is great need to familiarize the Russian Government with the meaning of "reciprocity." Thus, for example, the United States permits the publication in New York of a daily newspaper devoted to the Communist cause. This paper is presumably financed by private persons and not by the Russian Government.

Would the Russian Government permit American citizens to emigrate and publish a daily newspaper in Moscow devoted to the cause of Democracy as the people of the United States understand that term?

There is much discussion nowadays about the importance of continuing a short-wave radio broadcast service to Russia, known as the "Voice of America," and several members of the House of Representatives seem to think this broadcasting is a job to be done not by the Department of State but by private citizens to whom the task would be let by contract, with the government paying the expense.

While there is a relatively small number of radio sets in Russia, this is not the only means of communication that could be utilized. A daily newspaper in Moscow would be as good if not a better way to reach the Russian reading public.

It will be recalled that Marshal Stalin told former Governor Stinson of Minnesota recently that censorship prevailed in Russia because the press of other countries was subject to exaggerations and even untruths. Maybe Mrs. Stalin doesn't read the Communist newspaper published in New York, but if he wants to see a good example of American tolerance and omission of censorship, he should read the daily Communist organ. It does a better job of distortion and twisting of quotations out of context, plus propaganda, than any partisan newspaper of general circulation in America ever did.

Like an invigorating shot in the arm to the good monster which taunts the often careless conscience of big business, the lust for profit is a formidable destroyer of honest values.

It has been playing its stealthy role in staving off reconversion and uncountable other post-war adjustments, and most seriously it is steadily robbing your dollar of its purchasing power.

radio doesn't require any facilities inside Russia. Obviously the short-wave service should be considered, too, but the American government has every right to ask for the privilege for Americans to operate publications inside Russia as long as Communist dailies are permitted inside the United States.

Foreigners generally can publish newspapers in Great Britain, France and in Latin American countries. There is no just reason why Russia should exclude foreigners from publishing their periodicals and newspapers inside Russia. Nor is there any valid reason why the Soviets should exclude the correspondents who wish to enter Russia to write about what is going on there.

The Soviet government, even with a censorship to protect itself against the sending out of false news, permits only a handful of foreign correspondents to remain either in Moscow or anywhere else in Russia. This restriction has never been satisfactorily explained. The official excuse is lack of housing, but it is believed the real reason is the fear that the Russian government might not be able successfully to suppress the truth of what is happening inside Russia. If there were too many foreign correspondents, some of whom might elude the vigil of the secret police and travel around the country.

The belief prevails in many quarters here that the Russian government is really ashamed of what is happening behind the "iron curtain" and that it does not want foreign correspondents to learn of the squalor and starvation that exists or of the cruel manner in which the population is treated. This is one reason why attacks on America are so frequent and so bitter over the Russian radio. The purpose is to mislead the Russian people into believing that the plight of a relatively small segment of the share-croppers in the south is the plight of all America and that hence the Russian people should not expect the very high standard of living inside the United States.

The impression being brought back here by visitors to Russia is that the standard of living in that country is very low indeed. If true, the Russians are missing a big part of the freedom and prosperity of the west and the emergence of truth, there would be a tendency in America to find ways and means of reaching an understanding with the Russian people so that they—like the people of Greece and Turkey—could be assisted along the road to economic rehabilitation.

TRUMAN WINS—CONSUMERS LOSE

Truman has won a compromise in the matter of labor union legislation.

Until recently it looked as if he was playing the wrong game politically. It was well known that he had opposed any serious changes in present labor laws. He himself had said that he was for outlawing "jurisdictional strikes" and certain sympathetic strikes, and would welcome a joint committee, appointed by himself and Congress, to make an exhaustive study of the labor situation.

Any reader of the press could see that this Congress was sure to pass legislation to tame the wild chiefs of labor unions, and it was just as plain that Truman's milk-and-water proposals were designed to prevent any serious labor restrictive legislation.

In other words, the president's game has been to play for a compromise. If the compromise legislation is passed, it will be a victory for the union side, but it will be a defeat for the labor side. Truman can well afford to sign it. He can say to his union backers, "I pulled you through the 80th Congress without a single broken bone and without any serious harm to you. You will be standing behind him. They have nobody else to stand behind."

As for the millions of consumer votes which could have been lost if Truman can now tell when he signals whatever legislation the Congress

SAFE DRIVING PLEDGE

Aggressive action to reduce sharply the number of motor vehicle accidents in which U. S. Army motor vehicles are involved has been announced at First Army Headquarters, Governors Island.

A safe driving pledge which emphasizes ten cardinal points of safety in the operation of a motor vehicle will be signed by all military and civilian personnel.

If the safety driving pledge, which acknowledges responsibility for the operator's safety and for the safety of others while driving a vehicle, is carried out by drivers of all vehicles there will be a big reduction in the appalling toll of deaths on our highways today.

The pledge follows:

Practice good sportsmanship by courteous driving and by always giving the other fellow an even break.

Watch for the mistakes of other drivers and pedestrians and do everything I can to compensate for their unsafe acts.

Not drive "too fast for conditions," and will always control my vehicle so it can be stopped before striking any other vehicle, pedestrian or object.

Always drive in the proper traffic lane and give advance warning signals before passing, turning or stopping.

Not pass other vehicles in an intersection, or while on or approaching a hill or curve.

Always use my low headlight beam at night when meeting oncoming vehicles.

Slow down at night, at all times while driving through towns and villages.

Reduce speed and use extreme caution on wet or icy pavement.

Not drive while under the influence of intoxicating liquors.

Be particularly cautious when approaching or passing children, cyclists and aged pedestrians.

It is a little early to start the great American game of selecting and electing the next President; but already the hounds are baying and the experts are rallying.

WHAT THE CONSUMER WANTS

A recent survey of customer desires throughout the nation revealed that the public believes that prices should be lower and quality should be higher. There is nothing surprising in this. All of us would like to get more for our money. We yearn for a Utopia in which we earn 1947 incomes and buy at 1935 price level. That idea is beyond realization. However, both manufacturers and retailers declare they are working hard to do something constructive about the price-quality problem.

The "boom and bust" operators whose idea is to squeeze out every possible nickel while the going is good are rapidly disappearing, due to consumer resistance on the one hand and to constantly increase competition by reputable concerns on the other. This is especially true in all retail fields now that stocks are building up and most scarcities are ending.

The organized drive by the retailers to bring prices down is an encouraging sign. Success will depend upon full, intelligent cooperation between business, labor and the consumer.

The worst thing about this Greek business is its pronunciation.

The results of her investigations have not come this way as yet. Undoubtedly the clovers are at least as lucky as seeing the new moon over the left shoulder or finding a penny on the sidewalk.

'These Days'

By George E. Sokolsky

THE QUEBEC CONFERENCE

A reader of this column wrote to the White House and received a reply from Walter Walkinshaw, Chief, Public Views and Inquiries Section, Division of Public Liaison, Department of State, as follows:

"This Government's policy towards Germany remains based upon the agreement reached at Potsdam on August 2, 1945, by President Truman, Prime Minister Attlee and Generalissimo Stalin for the control of Germany. The agreement, therefore, takes precedence over the directive, referred to by Mr. Sokolsky as JCS 1067, which was originally issued in April of that year to General Eisenhower as Commander-in-Chief of United States Forces of Occupation. This Government has never adopted any so-called 'Morgenthau Plan' for the treatment of Germany and the statements quoted by Mr. Sokolsky in his article appear neither in the directive to General Eisenhower nor in the Potsdam Agreement."

Mr. Walkinshaw's reply is not an error. It is literally untrue as I shall show. The evidence:

1. Henry Morgenthau, in September, 1944, was requested by President Roosevelt "to outline a program for the treatment of Germany after her defeat." Although rightly such a plan should have come from the Secretary of State, Cordell Hull, or the Secretary of War, Henry Stimson, it was Morgenthau who went to Quebec with Roosevelt. Morgenthau prepared and presented a memorandum entitled, "Program to Prevent Germany from Starting a World War III." This program calls for "... completely disarming the German Army and people (including the removal or destruction of all war material), the total destruction of the whole German armament industry, and the removal or destruction of other key industries which are basic to military strength."

At the Quebec conference, the following memorandum was initiated by Franklin D. Roosevelt and Winston Churchill, dated September 15, 1944:

"At a conference between the President and the Prime Minister upon best measures to prevent renewed rearmament by Germany, it was felt that an essential feature was the future disposition of the Ruhr and the Saar."

"The case with which the metallurgical, chemical and electric industries in Germany can be converted from peace to war has been impressed on us by bitter experience. The Germans devastated a large portion of the industries of Russia and other neighboring allies, and it is only justice that these industries be put under the control of the victors. The Ruhr and the Saar would therefore be necessarily put out of action, closed down. The districts should be put under some body under the World Organization which would supervise dismantling the industries, and make sure they are not started up again in some subterfuge."

"This program looks forward to converting Germany into a country principally agricultural and pastoral."

"The Prime Minister and the President were in agreement on this."

(Initialed O.K. F.D.R. W.S.C.)

3. A Directive was issued in April, 1945, by the Joint Chiefs of Staff to the Commander in Chief of the United States Forces of Occupation referred to as JCS 1067. This follows rigidly the Morgenthau Plan and the Quebec Memorandum. In Publication 2630, issued by the Department of State and made available by the Superintendent of Documents, beginning on Page 56, as appendix C, appears JCS 1067 (probably in part). Although this book is not dated, material in it is dated as late as July 11, 1946, and therefore it is subsequent to Potsdam, which occurred in July-August, 1945. Thus, about a year after Potsdam, the State Department itself says:

"The fundamental documents concerning economic and other aspects of United States policy toward Germany are the directive issued in April, 1945, by the Joint Chiefs of Staff to the Commander in Chief of United States Forces of Occupation (later referred to as JCS 1067) and the Potsdam Agreement announced the following August."

4. Further evidence is the publication of JCS 1067 in a State Department book, "The Axis in Defeat," p. 40, containing documents in question.

Anyone who will take the trouble to study the documents will find:

1. The Morgenthau Plan was adopted at Quebec; 2. It is not superseded at Potsdam; 3. It was not superseded at Potsdam; 4. It was effective three months ago in Germany when I was last able to check through direct evidence.

PEPTIC ULCER

Because cancer causes so many deaths, despite the fact that thousands of research workers are patiently seeking the cause, many may feel discouraged about the future outlook of cancer and other medical problems. However, one look back over the past 25 years should encourage everybody. We realize that cancer is not a new disease, diabetes and pernicious anemia, are now under control. And still another great achievement has been the shock treatment for mental ailments as, previous to this discovery, it was estimated that within 50 years, one half of the population of the world would be needed to look after the other half because of mental disorders.

One of the meanest ailments that afflicts mankind and has become increasingly common before, during and since World War II, is peptic ulcer—ulcer of the stomach and first part of small intestine into which the stomach empties. While infection is partly the cause in some cases, nervousness and emotional disturbances are considered the underlying cause. So severe is the pain, and perforation so feared that the patient becomes greatly run-down in general health and must follow a strict diet to keep free of symptoms. Well, It Was Fun While It Lasted

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

No man can write a program that would quickly reduce to the prewar figure the rarity of railroad wrecks in the United States. But most of the men who operate the railroads have done absolutely nothing to abate the smash-ups, which, since the war and especially in the last few months, have made a dangerous adventure of an experience which had been almost entirely relieved of risk. They clear away the wreckage, their claim-agents and lawyers quietly call on the heirs of the dead and the shattered and shocked survivors, the Interstate Commerce Commission surveys the scene and the next day another pretentious string of gaudy junk strewn itself over some distant right-of-way.

The cause of these wrecks are various, but they fall into a few main groups. One is the cynical carelessness of men. By constant warnings to the railroad people in the shops, on the trains, in the towers and in the section gangs, the American railroads for a long time kept them alert and sensitive to the ghastly consequences of seemingly unimportant acts and omissions of carelessness. A brakeman learned that he was responsible for his own life and the lives of the other men working in the same business and the lives of the passengers. He was schooled not to give a signal on a guess that everything was all right. He learned to be absolutely sure, to like the trouble to look and see that everything was all right. A flagman never forgot his flares and torpedoes, or got left. A mechanic learned that if he didn't give a nut an extra twist, something might come loose, fall on the tracks and pile up a train going 100 miles an hour.

Two recent bad wrecks were caused by big metal objects falling on the rails, dislodged from the engines. Two were caused by careless or inefficient loading of freight.

That is just bad railroad. The managing executives certainly are responsible, but the work has to be done by railroad workmen. For many years they did their jobs carefully. Now they don't. A railroad executive whose own line had just had a series of three bad smash-ups remarked that there was a superstition that wrecks ran by threes, and added brightly that his outfit should be immune for a while. One of these three wrecks was avoidable. It was caused by a broken rail. The break was hidden by a plate and bolts and had been invisible to an eye-check. But they just hadn't got around to a check with electrical equipment, which would have spotted the trouble and averted the smash.

"It is mostly due to a letdown," the executive said. "The working people are just careless. We have had twice as many duplicate sales of reserved accommodations this winter as we ever had before."

He, the boss, then evinced the same letdown in himself by an overcharge which wasn't caught until the next day. A comparable error by another man might have wrecked a train.

Dilapidation of freight rigs of all types—boxcars, flats, gondolas and all—is shockingly apparent to the naked eye. "Many freight cars are loose and almost ready to fall off the right-of-way," an old and retired locomotive engineer writes me. "Corners are loose and when the corner bracing in a freight car, be it wood or metal, works loose, the car is dangerous and rapidly comes apart."

Passenger cars look more dashing and they probably are a little more carefully inspected. That means nothing if a boxcar collapses across the track of the passenger train. Nevertheless, many passenger trains are no better than junk, some of it polished on the outside but worn out far beyond the stage where it should be scrapped or rebuilt. Still, the railroad companies have stepped up the speed of trains that already were going too fast, and whip these clattering old hulks along weary rails lightly spiked to crumbling ties. Competition is no excuse for this. On the contrary, passenger business has fallen off badly. Last winter the railroads gained some passenger business when the airlines were losing planes in bad weather. Now they are losing it back to the airlines, so the competition between railroads and between the roads and the airlines is defeating its own purpose.

The same retired engineer, now 70, agree with me that speed and the old age of engineers are important causes of the smashups. Even younger engineers take desperate chances to maintain their dangerous schedules in spite of delays which are not their fault, lest they be charged with inefficiency in their records when they should get credit for safe operation.

"I think," my friend says, "that the main trouble is with the engineers. What hope has a fireman of ever getting 'set up' if the man on his right is going to hang on until he is 70? That is far too old for the job. Our reactions get slower as we get older."

"At 70 miles an hour a train is making a little over 100 feet a second. A good engineer does not have time to think. In the face of danger, he shuts off and gives her the right side before he reaches the retirement age himself."

In the present state of equipment and roadbeds, the Pennsylvania and the New York Central could drop their maximum speed from 70 to 60 miles an hour, and still make their 20 or 24 hours. Other roads which run shabby de luxe trains at high speed should simply announce that they won't take chances. "How much of that beautiful new postwar equipment have you received?" I asked a friend whose line had clipped about 12 hours off a long haul for its fast passenger train.

"Not a single, damned car," he said. "We haven't even replaced the cars we have smashed up."

Most vicious of aftermaths of World War 2 is the heavy and prolonged blight on our national economy arising of black market practices.

Like an invigorating shot in the arm to the greed monster which taunts the often careless conscience of big business, the lust for profit is a formidable destroyer of honest values.

It has been playing its stealthy role in staving off reconversion and uncountable other post-war adjustments, and most seriously, it is steadily robbing your dollar of its purchasing power.

It came through the back door as the government had its arms filled with war and it is a lurking prowler still apt to get away with murder.

We heard at one time that reconversion would be something like our all-out wartime production effort, but now at the end of two years, we have seen no convincing demonstrations of such national and effective action in national industry.

Perhaps this big and it is big black market money preference pursuing the same old "quick profit" channels and is effective enough to offset the power usually built up through normal investment practices. If so, then well-meaning big business and industry and our country's hands are tied.

Whatever the cause, it looks like time for drastic national action—a move forceful enough to strike down, and hard, where action is needed.

They have done it in Berlin, according to a recent Associated Press dispatch from Lynn Heinzelring. The report, dated May 17, told of the arrest by agents of the U. S. military government, of one Karl Jahn, 50-year-old, German, alleged leader of one of Berlin's biggest black market rings.

Officials reported that Jahn began his operations in Holland during the German occupation there and then switched to the lush profits available in Berlin under the Allies occupation.

The officials charged that Jahn had been dealing in all phases of the black market and is presently charged with the illegal sale of American tires and gasoline, possession of weapons and the fraudulent sale of shares in worthless coal mines in Czechoslovakia.

Black market operations in this nation now are not of the same variety reported and occasionally disclosed during the war, but the money made during the wartime operations is still making its way about illegally and for unfair profits wherever and whenever possible. No one can say at this time the full extent of such operations at this time, but it does seem now that somebody with the power to do so should attempt to probe the racket.

'Reciprocity' Is One Word Russians Should Know and Use in Their Daily Lives

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, May 21—"Reciprocity" is probably a difficult word to translate into Russian but surely some ingenious person familiar with the intricacies of the Russian language should be able to do it. For there is great need to familiarize the Russian Government with the meaning of "reciprocity."

Thus, for example, the United States permits the publication in New York of a daily newspaper devoted to the Communist cause. This paper is presumably financed by private persons and not by the Russian Government.

Would the Russian Government permit American citizens to finance and publish a daily newspaper in Moscow devoted to the cause of Democracy as the people of the United States understand that term?

There is much discussion nowadays about the importance of continuing a short-wave radio broadcast service to Russia, known as the "Voice of America," and several members of the House of Representatives seem to think this broadcasting is a job to be done not by the Department of State but by private citizens to whom the task would be let by contract, with the government paying the expense.

While there is a relatively small number of radio sets in Russia, this is not the only means of communication that could be utilized. A daily newspaper in Moscow would be as good if not a better way to reach the Russian reading public.

It will be recalled that Marshal Stalin told former Governor Marshal of Minnesota recently that censorship prevailed in Russia because the press of other countries was subject to exaggerations and even untruths. Maybe Mrs. Stalin doesn't read the Communist newspaper published in New York, but if he wants to get a good example of American tolerance and omission of censorship, he should read the daily Communist organ. It does a better job of distortion and twisting of quotations out of context, plus propaganda, than any partisan newspaper of general circulation in America ever did, though it must be conceded some of the organs of certain highly respectable labor unions are close rivals in their persistent stimulus of bitterness among workers against their employers.

It will be said at once that, of course, there isn't the slightest chance that the Russian government will permit an American-owned daily newspaper to operate in Moscow, and that short-wave radio doesn't require any facilities inside Russia. Obviously the short-wave service should be rendered, too, but the American government has every right to ask for the privilege for Americans to operate publications inside Russia as long as Communist dailies are permitted inside the United States.

Foreigners generally can publish newspapers in Great Britain, France and in Latin American countries. There is no just reason why Russia should exclude foreigners from publishing their periodicals and newspapers inside Russia. Nor is there any valid reason why the Soviets should exclude the correspondents who wish to enter Russia to write about what is going on there.

The Soviet government, even with a censorship to protect itself against the sending out of false news, permits only a handful of foreign correspondents to remain either in Moscow or anywhere else in Russia. The reason for this has never been satisfactorily explained. The official excuse is lack of housing, but it is believed the real reason is the fear that the Russian government might not be able successfully to suppress the truth of what's happening inside Russia if there were too many foreign correspondents, some of whom might elude the vigils of the secret police and travel around the country.

The belief prevails in many quarters here that the Russian government is really ashamed of what is happening behind the "iron curtain" and that it does not want foreign correspondents to learn of the squalor and starvation that exists or of the cruel manner in which the population is treated. This is one reason why attacks on America are so frequent, and so bitter over the Russian radio. The purpose is to mislead the Russian people into believing that the plight of a relatively small segment of the share-croppers in the south is the plight of all America and that hence the Russian people should not credit the reports of a high standard of living inside the United States.

The impression being brought back here by visitors to Russia is that the standard of living in that country is very low indeed. If true, the Russians are missing a bet, for, if they allowed freedom of the press and the emergence of truth, there would be a tendency in America to find ways and means of reaching an understanding with the Russian people so that they—like the people of Greece and Turkey—could be assisted along the road to economic rehabilitation.

Truman wins—consumers lose.

Truman has won a compromise in the matter of labor union legislation.

Until recently it looked as if he was playing the wrong game politically. It was well known that he had opposed any serious changes in present labor laws. He himself had said that he was for outlawing jurisdiction strikes and certain sympathetic strikes, and would welcome a joint committee, appointed by himself and Congress, to make an exhaustive study of the labor situation.

Any reader of the press could see that Truman was sure to pass legislation to tame the wild chiefs of unionism; and it was just as plain that Truman's milk-and-water proposals were designed to prevent any serious labor restrictive legislation.

In other words, the president's game has been to play for a compromise. If the compromise legislation should be sufficiently favorable to his union backing then he would not veto it. At this writing it is almost certain that the Congress without a single broken bone and without any serious bruises. They will have to stand behind him. They have nobody else to stand behind.

As for the millions of consumer voters which could have been lost Truman can now tell when he signed whatever legislation the Congress sent him. We will have to blame our legislators, not Truman, if we didn't get the labor disputes measure.

He can't say that Truman cannot afford to do, his only chance now to lose in this tussle, is to veto the compromise measure. A veto would cost him many a vote in 1948.

New York, May 21 (AP)—Mrs. Amy Otis Earhart, 79, of Boston is convinced that her daughter, Amelia Earhart, was taken prisoner by the Japanese after her disappearance over the Pacific Ocean in 1937.

Mrs. Earhart came here yesterday for a radio interview and said her daughter, at the time of her round-the-world flight attempt, was on a government mission "so secret that it was even kept from me." She said she had not discussed her daughter's disappearance publicly before.

She told of unsuccessful efforts she made to get Japanese consular officials to investigate.

Three Escape Injury In Matamoras Crash

Matamoras, Pa., May 21 (AP)—A flying instructor and two student pilots escaped injury early today when their four-place training plane crashed and burned near the Matamoras airport.

They were Anthony Farrell, 32, of Millrift, Pa., the pilot; Robert Pohlmann, 26, of 12061 St. Raymond Ave., New York City, and Ralph Flinx, 21, Sparrowbush, N. Y.

The three were returning to the Z. Dorvend Flying Field, adjoining the Matamoras airport, from a routine training flight to Albany, N. Y., when they overshot the lighted field.

Farrell said that while attempting to gain altitude he saw a fire in the engine, tried unsuccessfully to put it out with an automatic extinguisher, and finally was forced to make a crash landing in a field 3,000 feet from the airport. The three escaped from the plane before it burned.

teistic of the nursing service. The report recognizes the assistance given by the public health nursing committees.

Nurse Personnel Changes

Nursing personnel changes have taken place in several areas. Miss Schoonmaker was assigned to the town of Ulster in addition to her previous commitments. Miss Stronman returned to duty on the town of Marlborough and part of Plattekill. Miss Casey will also spend time in Lloyd and a section of Plattekill. Mrs. Korzenior is now inactive due to illness.

Progress was reported in the tuberculosis nursing service. Letters of invitation to delinquent contacts and suspects proved effectual and approximately 50 per cent responded in the city and 30 per cent in the rural areas.

Plans are under way for weekly itinerant afternoon and evening clinics in Kingston in addition to the out-of-town clinics. The Child Health consultations continue to be well attended.

Water, Milk Checkup

The report of Harry Edinger, B. S., M. S., director of the Division of Environmental Sanitation, states the sanitation work for the month was based on public water supply work with particular stress on chlorination during the spring run-off period. Milk work was continued with stress on pre-pasteurized supplies and inspection of such camps as made application for permits was carried out. Considerable work regarding summer hotels was done although the season for routine investigations had not yet arrived. Routine inspection were made of Rosendale, Highland, New Paltz, Kingston, Marlborough and Kerhonkson water supplies. All were being satisfactorily maintained.

The report states that ultimately it will be necessary to request the commissioner of health of New York state to enact rules and regulations for the control of pollution on the Black Creek watershed of the Highland water supply.

Milk inspections were made and in all 27 farms producing milk for pasteurization at local plants were found questionable but through follow-up visits the trouble was located and it became unnecessary to close any dairy farms although some cans of milk were excluded. In the sewage field under fed-

HOME BUREAU

Plattekill Organizes

A new unit of the Ulster County Home Bureau was organized in Plattekill last week, under the leadership of Miss Everette Parsons, county home demonstration agent.

Officials elected at the meeting were: Mrs. George Siste, Sr., chairman; Mrs. Leander Mirard, vice-chairman; Mrs. Beulah Thompson, secretary; and Mrs. James Leech, treasurer.

The regular meetings of the Plattekill group will be held on the third Tuesday of each month. To complete the remainder of this year's schedule, the unit will hold a kitchen conference at Mrs. Albert Terwilliger's home on May 27, and on June 10 and 24 furniture refinishing lessons at the same place.

Items comprising next year's program consist of legal information, social security advice, the technique of making a tailored blouse, a better cotton dress, mending via sewing machine, the art of refurbishing hats, kitchen conferences, treatment of old and new floors, slip cover making, lamp shades, furniture refinishing, and book reviews.

Various local leaders will lecture on the aforementioned projects. Some of the courses will be taught by the county home demonstration agent and assistant agent.

Lomontville Unit

The monthly business meeting of the Lomontville Home Bureau was held recently at the fire house. Eleven members attended. The group decided to hold the annual picnic June 4 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willy Kohler on Lomontville.

Kerhonkson Unit

The Kerhonkson Home Bureau will meet tonight at the home of Mrs. David DePew at 8 o'clock. Mrs. G. Smith will be the assistant hostess. Mrs. Floyd Ellsworth of Kingston will give lesson two in making the most of sewing machines. Each member is requested to bring their individual sewing machine attachment.

W. J. Lyster Dies

Washington, May 21 (AP)—Col. William J. Lyster, 77, retired army medical officer who developed the "Lyster Bag" for sterilizing drinking water, died last night of heart disease. The Lyster Bag, widely used during World War 2, enabled U. S. soldiers to drink water from jungle streams or leaky conduits in bombed out cities. Suspended from a tripod, the bag destroyed water-borne bacteria such as typhoid and dysentery.

HOME BUREAU

Plattekill Organizes

A new unit of the Ulster County Home Bureau was organized in Plattekill last week, under the leadership of Miss Everette Parsons, county home demonstration agent.

Officials elected at the meeting were: Mrs. George Siste, Sr., chairman; Mrs. Leander Mirard, vice-chairman; Mrs. Beulah Thompson, secretary; and Mrs. James Leech, treasurer.

The regular meetings of the Plattekill group will be held on the third Tuesday of each month. To complete the remainder of this year's schedule, the unit will hold a kitchen conference at Mrs. Albert Terwilliger's home on May 27, and on June 10 and 24 furniture refinishing lessons at the same place.

Items comprising next year's program consist of legal information, social security advice, the technique of making a tailored blouse, a better cotton dress, mending via sewing machine, the art of refurbishing hats, kitchen conferences, treatment of old and new floors, slip cover making, lamp shades, furniture refinishing, and book reviews.

Ulster Health

teristic of the nursing service. The report recognizes the assistance given by the public health nursing committees.

Nurse Personnel Changes

Nursing personnel changes have taken place in several areas. Miss Schoonmaker was assigned to the town of Ulster in addition to her previous commitments. Miss Strohmman returned to duty on the town of Marlborough and part of Plattekill. Miss Casey will also spend time in Lloyd and a section of Plattekill. Mrs. Korzenior is now inactive due to illness.

Progress was reported in the tuberculosis nursing service. Letters of invitation to delinquent contacts and suspects proved effectual and approximately 50 per cent responded in the city and 30 per cent in the rural areas. Plans are under way for weekly itinerant afternoon and evening clinics in Kingston in addition to the out-of-town clinics. The Child Health consultations continue to be well attended.

Water, Milk Checkup

The report of Harry Edinger, B. S., M. S., director of the Division of Environmental Sanitation, states the sanitation work for the month was based on public water supply work with particular stress on chlorination during the spring run-off period. Milk work was continued with stress on pre-pasteurized supplies and inspection of such camps as made application for permits was carried out. Considerable work regarding summer hotels was done although the season for routine investigations had not yet arrived. Routine inspection were made of Rosendale, Highland, New Paltz, Kingston, Marlborough and Kerhonkson water supplies. All were being satisfactorily maintained.

The report states that ultimately it will be necessary to request the commissioner of health of New York state to enact rules and regulations for the control of pollution from creek and watershed of the Highland water supply.

Milk inspections were made in all 27 farms producing milk and in four dairies at local plants were found questionable but through follow-up visits no trouble was located and it became unnecessary to close any dairy farms although some cans of milk were excluded. In the sewage field under federal postwar planning funds Ellen-ville has signed a contract with consulting engineers for the preparation of land and specifications for sewerage and sewage treatment for the village.

Application for camp permits are being received and 28 inspections were made in April. None were rejected and nine permits have cleared.

Nine nuisance investigations were made including sewage overflow in the town of Rosendale which is being corrected. Complaints of garbage and refuse violations were investigated and corrected. One complaint was received of dead animals being disposed of in the bed of the old D. & H. canal but it was found no nuisance existed.

Twenty-five inspections of restaurants were made and three restaurants were notified of a re-inspection within 30 days and nine were given immediate reinspection.

The report of Dr. George W. Weber, M.D., director of the tuberculosis hospital, showed the hospital operating at practically capacity with a daily average census of over 56 patients. There are 57 available beds. Out-patient clinics were held in Walkill, New Paltz, Saugerties and Ellenville and one clinic was held at night in Kingston at which 51 patients were examined. Total clinic examinations for the month were 481 patients. A total of eight new cases of tuberculosis was found among the 351 patients. Four of the patients were found to be among patients of either 46 years of age or over.

The statistical report shows 20 cases of chickenpox, 37 measles, five pneumonia.

During April there were 146 live births, 2 stillborn. Total deaths, excluding stillbirths for April were 101. Causes of death were heart disease, 52; cerebral hemorrhage and apoplexy, 11; cancer, 13; by violence, 2; acute and chronic nephritis, 2; and diabetes, 2.

During April there was a total of 960 animals inspected of which 38 were condemned by Kingston city meat inspectors, Dr. Poley reports.

Plumbing Inspector Edward R. Arnold reported four applications for installations in new buildings, 22 for installations in existing buildings. There were 38 rough inspections made and 46 final inspections. Six complaints were received and investigated.

Telephone Dispute

settled for barely one-third of the flat $12 weekly pay increase which they had demanded.

The installation workers, members of the Association of Communications Equipment Workers, received average increases of 11½ cents an hour or $4.60 a week. Most of the telephone operators, linemen, clerks and equipment workers who joined in the walkout probably received an average weekly boost of between $3.50 and $4 plus "fringe" adjustments which the N.E.T.W. said would boost take home pay by about another $1 a week.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics placed the average pre-strike weekly earnings of telephone workers at $44.19. By N.E.T.W. acknowledgment, the strike was not a union success, and because of heavy drains on the union treasury during the strike, some consideration is being given to postponing the N.E.T.W. convention scheduled for Miami Beach next month.

Washington, May 21 (AP)—Col. William J. Lyster, 77, retired army medical officer who developed the "Lyster Bag" for sterilizing drinking water, died last night of heart disease. The Lyster Bag, widely used during World War 2, enabled U. S. soldiers to drink water from jungle streams or leaky conduits in bombed out cities. Suspended from a tripod, the bag destroyed water-borne bacteria such as typhoid and dysentery.

About 40 pupils from the Hurley School visited Albany and Howe Caverns Friday. The pupils of the fifth and sixth grade with their teacher, Miss Marion Cressler and the pupils of the seventh and eighth grades with their teacher, Ernest Myers, principal of the school, made the bus trip.

The group visited the state capital, museum and office building. On their return they stopped at Howe Caverns which they explored and included the boat ride on the underground lake.

Mendelssohn Club Group in Festival

Several members of the Mendelssohn Club attended the Choral Festival of the Atlantic Conference of Male Chorus at White Plains Saturday. Approximately 1,500 men participated, representing 62 clubs.

Robert Williams, who conducts the Mendelssohn Club and is also organist and choir master at St. John's Episcopal Church, conducted one of the combined choruses and Rolland E. Heermance, conductor of the Catskill Glee Club, conducted another.

Those who attended from Kingston to represent Mendelssohn were William T. Hooley, Jr., president; the Rev. Robert T. Shellenberger, Clayton R. Smith, Warren A. Russell and Paul E. Barnum.

The program was in two parts. The Greater New York, Central and Western New York, Maryland, Connecticut and Northeast Pennsylvania divisions each sang a group of songs in the first part. The Hudson Valley Division of seven clubs was represented by the renowned Cadet Glee Club of U. S. Military Academy. All other clubs considered guest clubs sang in the second part of the program. The audience of more than 3,000 applauded the marvelous phrasing and expression of so large a chorus. G. Loring Burwell, president of the Atlantic Conference directed the chorus. This was the first combined concert the Associated Male Chorus of America has sponsored in this region since 1939 when 3,500 sang at the World's Fair.

Hurley School Pupils Visit State Capital

About 40 pupils from the Hurley School visited Albany and Howe Caverns Friday. The pupils of the fifth and sixth grade with their teacher, Miss Marion Cressler and the pupils of the seventh and eighth grades with their teacher, Ernest Myers, principal of the school, made the bus trip.

The group visited the state capitol, museum and office building. On their return they stopped at Howe Caverns which they explored and included the boat ride on the underground lake.

Mendelssohn Club Group in Festival

Several members of the Mendelssohn Club attended the Choral Festival of the Atlantic Conference of Male Choruses at White Plains Saturday. Approximately 1,500 men participated, representing 62 clubs.

Robert Williams, who conducts the Mendelssohn Club and is also organist and choir master at St. John's Episcopal Church, conducted one of the combined chorus numbers and Roland E. Heermance, conductor of the Catskill Glee Club, conducted another.

Those who attended from Kingston to represent Mendelssohn were William T. Hookey, Jr., president; the Rev. Robert T. Shellenberger, Clayton R. Smith, Warren A. Russell and Paul E. Barnum.

The program was in two parts. The Greater New York, Central and Western New York, Maryland, Connecticut and Northeast Pennsylvania divisions each sang a group of songs in the first part. The Hudson Valley Division of seven clubs was represented by the renowned Cadet Glee Club of U. S. Military Academy. All other clubs considered guest clubs sang in the second part of the program.

The audience of more than 3,000 applauded the marvelous phrasing and expression of so large a chorus. G. Loring Burwell, president of the Atlantic Conference directed the chorus. This was the first combined concert the Associated Male Choruses of America has sponsored in this region since 1939 when 3,500 sang at the World's Fair.

AN OLD PROBLEM

A young girl asks: "What can I do when all the other girls in my class, who are going to our club dance, are getting flowers from their boy friends and I am sure that my boy friend (coming from out of town) will not think of sending any to me?"

Your own family should order flowers for you. Your boy friend probably would think they are part of your dress. If he should bring you some, then you leave the family's at home.

A "Bridal" Procession of Everyday Clothes

Dear Mrs. Post: At my wedding, I would like to wear a tailored suit and the groom wear business clothes. (1) Can I walk up the aisle? (2) Can we have more than our families present? (3) Can we have more than one attendant? (4) Can we have a reception?

Answer: (1) Yes. (2) Yes. (3) No. (4) Yes—if simple.

Knife and Fork

Dear Mrs. Post: Would you please settle a discussion several friends have had about the position of the knife on the plate after it has been used? In the pictures in your book, one shows the sharp edge turned in and another is across the edge of the plate with the sharp edge turned out. Are both correct? Is one way preferable?

Answer: You usually put the knife down without thinking. After you have finished, it is put close to the fork (which should have tines turned up), both far enough on to the plate not to fall off. Correctly (and naturally), the ornamented side of the knife and fork are placed uppermost.

In a Restaurant

Dear Mrs. Post: (1) When a woman leaves a small restaurant table to go to the powder room, does the man with her stay at table or walk out of the room with her? (2) Must all the men at the table be put to the inconvenience of rising when a woman at table leaves?

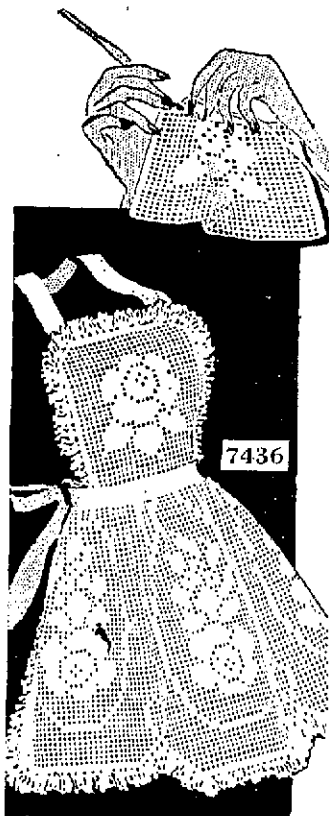

Answer: (1) He stays at table. (2) The one man alone to whom she is talking, rises slightly when she leaves and also when she returns. In other words, he attracts as little attention as possible to her going and coming back.

Mrs. Post's leaflet E-4, entitled "Wedding Expenses," gives a list of items paid by the bride's family and the groom. To obtain a copy, send 5 cents in coin and a stamped self-addressed envelope to her, in care of Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y. Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. (Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Tulip Time in Kingston

The tulip plays a very important part in the beautiful gardens throughout this city. Moved by the aesthetic appeal of this flower, which has figured prominently in floral history since it was introduced into Europe from Turkey in 1554, The Freeman photographer visited several gardens displaying many of the tulip species in large numbers. In the top picture Salvatore Danna of New York and John Smith of North

Arlington, N. J., seamen on the Navy Destroyer, U. S. S. Noa admire the tulips which border the walks at the First Dutch Church. In the center picture, the gardens at the residence of Samuel Stern, Presidents Place have 7,500 tulips in bloom. The tulip beds at the Carr residence on Lucas avenue is attracting the attention of flower lovers. Each year thousands of tulip bulbs are set out at the Carr residence.

'Sample Sam' Even Palms Your Change

The tactics of a candy salesman visiting many offices and stores in Kingston yesterday could be emulated by less ambitious and less successful vendors, but the technique might not be too enduring.

This comical character lends a touch of the fancy side to his trade. He walks into an office with an open box of candy in one hand, and a pair of pin-cers holding a candy in his other hand.

"Have a candy while you work," he says, and before you know it you are tasting his sample. In a few seconds he has "sampled" the entire office and then thrusts a complete box at you and tells you it sells for only 69 cents. He even has the 31 cents change ready in his right hand as you offer a dollar bill.

Then out he rushes to find a new customer.

Pre-Slapping, Girl Says, Satisfies Soul

Jackson, Miss., May 21 (AP)—Thirty-year-old Diana Guance, a former waitress, knows what it feels like to slap a pie in the boss' face.

It's "soul-satisfying," Miss Guance told reporters last night as she contemplated charges of assault filed against her by Chris Costas, operator of the Ritz Cafe. "I considered it for several days and then Monday I got the impelling urge," she related. "I held the pie in my left hand and tapped him on the shoulder with my other hand. He looked up. I slapped the delicious mess in his face."

The trial is set for Friday.

AN OLD PROBLEM

A young girl asks: "What can I do when all the other girls in my class, who are going to our club dance, are getting flowers from their boy friends and I am sure that my boy friend (coming from out of town) will not think of sending any to me?"

Your own family should order flowers for you. Your boy friend probably would think they are part of your dress. If he should bring you some, then you leave the family's at home.

A "Bridal" Procession of Everyday Clothes

Dear Mrs. Post: At my wedding, I would like to wear a tailored suit and the groom wear business clothes. (1) Can I walk up the aisle? (2) Can we have more than our families present? (3) Can we have more than one attendant? (4) Can we have a reception?

Answer: (1) Yes, (2) Yes, (3) No, (4) Yes—if simple.

Knife and Fork

Dear Mrs. Post: Would you please settle a discussion several friends have had about the position of the knife on the plate after it has been used? In the pictures in your book, one shows the sharp edge turned in and another is across the edge of the plate with the sharp edge turned out. Are both correct? Is one way preferable?

Answer: You usually put the knife down without thinking. After you have finished, it is put close to the fork (which should have tines turned up), both far enough on to the plate not to fall off. Correctly (and naturally), the ornamented side of the knife and fork are placed uppermost.

In a Restaurant

Dear Mrs. Post: (1) When a woman leaves a small restaurant table to go to the powder room, does the man with her stay at table or walk out of the room with her? (2) Must all the men at the table be put to the inconvenience of rising when a woman at table leaves?

Answer: (1) He stays at table. (2) The one man alone to whom she is talking, rises slightly when she leaves and also when she returns. In other words, he attracts as little attention as possible to her going and coming back.

Mrs. Post's leaflet E-4, entitled "Wedding Expenses," gives a list of items paid by the bride's family and the groom. To obtain a copy, send 5 cents in coin and a stamped self-addressed envelope to her, in care of Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y. Tulip Time in Kingston

The tulip plays a very important part in the beautiful gardens throughout this city. Moved by the aesthetic appeal of this flower, which has figured prominently in floral history since it was introduced into Europe from Turkey in 1554, The Freeman photographer visited several gardens displaying many of the tulip species in large numbers. In the top picture Salvatore Danna of New York and John Smith of North

Arlington, N. J., seamen on the Navy Destroyer, U. S. S. Noa admire the tulips which border the walks at the First Dutch Church. In the center picture, the gardens at the residence of Samuel Stern, Presidents Place have 7,500 tulips in bloom. The tulip beds at the Carr residence on Lucas avenue is attracting the attention of flower lovers. Each year thousands of tulip bulbs are set out at the Carr residence.

'Sample Sam' Even Palms Your Change

The tactics of a candy salesman visiting many offices and stores in Kingston yesterday could be emulated by less ambitious and less successful vendors but the technique might not be too enduring.

This comical character lends a touch of the fancy side to his trade. He walks into an office with an open box of candy in one hand, and a pair of pinners holding a candy in his other hand.

"Have a candy while you work," he says, and before you know it you are tasting his sample. In a few seconds he has "sampled" the entire office box at you and tells you it sells for only 69 cents. He even has the 31 cents change ready in his right hand as you offer a dollar bill.

Then out he rushes to find a new customer.

Lions Are Hosts To Noa Officials; Hear Union Talk

Goodman Traces Growth of Garment Union; Styles Affect Industry

At its regular meeting yesterday afternoon at the Governor Clinton Hotel, the Kingston Lions Club played host to the captain and officials of the U.S.S. No. 2200-ton naval destroyer, anchored off Kingston Point for the last two days, appearing here in connection with Naval Reserve personnel recruitments.

Following the luncheon, the members and guests were addressed by Morley Goodman, manager of the Hudson valley area of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, who gave a resume of the historical development of the union and expressed personal opinions concerning the treatment of a few union abuses by members of the U. S. Navy. Goodman also made efforts to inculcate a new bill outflowing general union liberties.

In reviewing the drawbacks in the ladies' garments industry, Goodman insisted that the primary trouble was the ladies themselves, not the workers employed by the industry, but the customers who purchase the finished products.

These lady customers, Goodman said, can change the entire industry merely by creating new styles during the various seasons. Production, he said, is determined by what mildly wants to wear.

At 47 years old Goodman then gave a brief chronological sketch of the union he represents. The International Ladies Garment Workers Union, he said, was chartered 47 years ago by the American Federation of Labor, and originated in the poorer sections of New York's East Side.

The garment industry in its initial operation phases, he explained, consisted mainly of immigrant workers, German Jews and Italians who were adept at tailoring and hence opened up the first small shops in their poor dwellings and tenements, which were eventually to develop into the nation's best organized industries and unions.

Having migrated to the states from Europe, these Germans and Italians naturally had to surmount the language difficulty in order to develop and progress in their tailoring business. Consequently Goodman went on, when they hired assistants they chose laborers from their own particular language group. In this way, he said, the industry grew and prospered in its first days with little regard for the financial betterment of the employees. Wishing to make an honest living, the immigrants were content to eke out a meagre existence.

Was Cheap Labor Program. The hours in those days were unlimited, Goodman said. Factories as we know them today were practically non-existent. When a contractor wanted to have a certain number of garments made, he would issue bids to smaller groups, all of which would try to outdo one another by competitive tactics, thereby lending support to the cheap labor program.

Attempts to organize into any semblance of a union in the early days were sporadic. However, Goodman said, through the process of achieving temporary gains, the union as we know it today in essence was gradually organized. Goodman pointed out that in 1906 women working in waist shirt industries in New York hours on end and under miserable environmental conditions, staged a walkout and were arrested—not for picketing, but for streetwalking and soliciting. The strike was settled without material gain to the employees, but the strike created the first newspaper covering the strike caused considerable comment concerning "sweat shop" labor and raised public interest to the extent where conditions existing were investigated and carefully studied.

International Takes Over

The following year stability was brought to the garment industries by the creation of the International Union. Working hours were reduced and various restrictions imposed on the manufacturers whereby "contractual limitation" was utilized, allowing the employers to sub-let to only that many contractors as would be allowed to complete the quota set by the manufacturers.

Later union demands balanced the existence of a standard wage and price scale on similar garments in different production areas.

Contractual limitation, asserted Goodman, can change the entire industry merely by creating new styles during the various seasons. Production, he said, is determined by what mildly wants to wear.

Financial and Commercial

New York, May 21 (AP)—Selling pressure eased somewhat in today's Stock Market although trends were irregular.

A number of leading industrialists leaned to recovery, wiping out early declines but dealings remained at a sluggish rate which was disappointing to those hoping for a sizable rebound. Near the fourth hour fractional changes in either direction predominated.

Selected issues drew some support from short covering and bidding for quick-turn profit, brokers reported. Persisting as brakes on enthusiasm were doubts over the final form of labor and tax legislation, outlook for earnings in the remainder of the year, and concern over foreign developments.

Ahead were Standard Oil (N. J.), U. S. Steel, Santa Fe, International Paper, American Woolen, National Sugar Refining, Monsanto Chemical, Timken Roller Bearing, Wrigley, Texas & Pacific Land Trust, General Electric, Southern Railway, American Airlines, Public Service of N. J. and May Department Stores. Lagging were Bethlehem, Goodyear, Pfizer, Phillips Petroleum, Schenley, Great Northern Preferred and Twentieth Century-Fox.

Curb climbers included middle West Corp., Helena Rubenstein and Illinois Power, on the offside were Knott Corp., Electric Bond & Share and Cities Service.

Dinner Club Enters 3rd Year

Urges Americans To Set Example For World Peace

Americans must lead the way to peace, Suzanne Silvercray, noted sculptor, believes. In her talk to the Kingston National Dinner Club Tuesday night at the Governor Clinton Hotel, she urged Americans to be an example to the rest of the world. Individually she suggested that people return to sound principles in living.

As she talked she molded her head of one of the audience. After completing the sketch, she revealed her model, Miss Louise Corbitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John N. Cordis of West Chestnut street.

In introducing her remarks, Miss Silvercray was particularly concerned with what the war has done to people, especially the young people between 12 and 17. She feels that the war has destroyed the belief in the sacredness of life, belief in planning for the future, economizing, and stability.

Turn to Arts, She Advises. She proposed as relief for this condition the return to true values in life. "The values we create with it in ourselves which cannot be taken away." One way could be through self-expression in one of the arts.

Miss Silvercray recounted some of the artistic experiences she has had in her work as a sculptor. She became interested in the art while she was recovering from tuberculosis. Miss Silvercray was admitted to the Y. M. C. A. school of Fine Arts where her work was recognized and she was assigned to do a bust of Herbert Hoover. She also spoke of her experiences in doing Jack Dempsey, Katherine Hepburn, the Dionne quintuplets and Wendell Willkie, whom she considered the greatest American.

The speaker has an interesting background and lecture experience. During the first World War when she was a small child in Belgium, she assisted Edith Cavell by carrying messages to allied soldiers escaping through the country with the aid of the English nurse. She has been a lecturer since her early teens and a citizen of the United States since 1922. It was in 1925 that she started working with clay.

Life Story by Face

She demonstrated some of the fundamentals of sculpting with sketch material and description of various facial features. In connection with it she said, "In your face your life will be written, and the way you have written it."

In conclusion, Miss Silvercray made a strong plea for Americans to pray for leaders with vision to work for peace. She emphasized the need for Americans to make democracy work. She asked all to work together as they did during the war years, to set an example to the rest of the world.

Special guests at the meeting last night were Harold R. Peat, director of the National Dinner Club, its friend, Dr. Louis Wardell of New York city, and Col. Ned Stevenson, husband of the speaker.

Mr. Peat returned for the third year last night as he congratulated the club at the beginning of its

She sustained a rib fracture, broken finger and shock.

Mrs. Seigal has returned from Oneonta where she spent the week-end with her daughter while she was in Fox Memorial Hospital. She has returned to Babcock Dormitory, 61 Church street, where she is recuperating. First aid was given Miss Seigal by Mrs. Wythorn, wife of the English professor at the college, who was with the students at the time.

Body of Divinite Is Found in Olive Bridge Home

The body of Quietness Love, 60, negro, was found this morning at 7:45 o'clock by Lester Burrenger and Allen Rose at the former's home in Olive Bridge, one of Father Divine's rest camps.

According to Coroner Arthur Chipp of Poughkeepsie, Love died of coronary occlusion. Coroner Chipp and Deputy Arthur Smith of the sheriff's office conducted the investigation.

Authorities said that Love had apparently stepped outside on the porch where he had died.

There are no relatives surviving.

He explained the list of suggested speakers for the remainder of the year. Those attending the meeting last night were given ballots on which to select six speakers. The next meeting will be in October.

Harold V. Clayton, new president, presided at the meeting. Rabbi Herbert I. Bloom gave the invocation.

Lions Are Hosts To Noa Officials; Hear Union Talk

Goodman Traces Growth of Garment Union; Styles Affect Industry

At its regular meeting yesterday afternoon at the Governor Clinton Hotel, the Kingston Lions Club played host to the captain and officials of the U.S.S. Noa, 2200-ton naval destroyer, anchored off Kingston Point for the last two days, appearing here in connection with Naval Reserve personnel recruitments.

Following the luncheon, the members and guests were addressed by Morton Goodman, manager of the Hudson Valley area of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, who gave a resume of the historical development of the union and expressed personal opinions concerning the treatment of a few union abuses by members of the U. S. Congress in their efforts to institute a new bill outlawing general union liberties.

In reviewing the drawbacks in the ladies' garments industry, Goodman insisted that the primary trouble was the ladies themselves, not the workers employed by the industry, but the customers who purchase the finished products.

These lady customers, Goodman said, can change the entire industry merely by creating new styles during the various seasons. Production, he said, is determined by what milady wants to wear.

Is 47 Years Old

Goodman then gave a brief chronological sketch of the union he represents. The International Ladies' Garment Workers Union, he said, was chartered 47 years ago by the American Federation of Labor, and originated in the poorer sections of New York's East Side.

The garment industry in its initial operation phases, he explained, consisted mainly of immigrant workers, German Jews and Italians who were adept at tailoring and hence opened up the first small shops in their poor dwellings and launched what was eventually to develop into one of the nation's best organized industries and unions.

Having migrated to the states from Europe, these Germans and Italians naturally had to surmount the language difficulty in order to develop and progress in their tailoring business. Consequently, Goodman went on, when they hired assistants they chose laborers from their own particular language group. In this way, he said, the industry grew and prospered in its first days with little regard for the financial betterment of the employees. Wishing to make an honest living, the immigrants were content to eke out a meagre existence.

Was Cheap Labor Program

The hours in those days were unlimited, Goodman said. Factories as we know them today were practically non-existent. When a contractor wanted to have a certain number of garments made, he would issue bids to smaller groups, all of which would try to outdo one another by competitive tactics, thereby lending support to the cheap labor program.

Attempts to organize into any semblance of a union in the early days were sporadic. However, Goodman said, through the process of achieving temporary gains, the union as we know it today in essence was gradually organized.

Goodman pointed out that in 1909 women working in waist shirt industries in New York hours on end and under miserable environment conditions, staged a walkout and were arrested, not for picketing, but for streetwalking and soliciting. The strike was settled without material gains to the employees, but the stir created by the newspapers covering the strike caused considerable comment concerning "sewer work" and raised public interest to the extent where conditions existing were investigated and carefully studied.

International Takes Over

The following year stability was brought to the garment industries by the creation of the International Union. Working hours were reduced and various restrictions imposed on the manufacturers whereby "contractual limitation" was stabilized, allowing the employers to sub-let to only that many contractors who would be allowed to complete the quota set by the manufacturers.

Later union demands balanced the existence of a standard wage and price scale on similar garments in different production areas.

Contractual limitation, asserted Goodman, was a practical asset in that it did away with the exploitation of cheap labor by the employers.

Goodman further explained the beneficial aspects of the organized union to the members themselves, showing the various social benefits and welfare contributions to members in need of assistance.

How Reds Are Fought

Referring to the infiltration of Communists into labor industries, Goodman said that the union deals with them not on the basis of persecution, but one of a more careful nature. He pointed out that in 1926 the Reds seized complete control of the suit and coat industry and since they were solely interested in furthering political measures, and not in obtaining proper leadership for the benefit of the industry, they are openly fought in this respect.

Financial and Commercial

New York, May 21 (AP)—Selling pressure eased somewhat in today's Stock Market although trends were irregular.

A number of leading industrial leaders to recovery, wiping out early declines but dealings remained at a sluggish rate which was disappointing to those hoping for a sizeable rebound. Near the fourth hour fractional changes in either direction predominated.

Selected issues drew some support from short covering and bidding for quick-turn profit, brokers reported. Persisting as brakes on enthusiasm were doubts over the final form of labor and tax legislation, outlook for earnings in the remainder of the year, and concern over foreign developments.

Steel, Santa Fe, International Paper, American Woolen, National Sugar Refining, Mosaic, Chemical, Timken Roller Bearing, Wrigley, Texas & Pacific Land Trust, General Electric, Southern Railway, American Airlines, Public Service of N. Americans must lead the way to peace, Suzanne Silvercruys, noted sculptor, believes. In her talk to the Kingston National Dinner Club Tuesday night at the Governor Clinton Hotel, she urged Americans to be an example to the rest of the world. Individually she suggested that people return to sound principles in living.

As she talked she molded the head of one of the audience. After completing the sketch, she revealed her model, Miss Louise Cordts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John N. Cordts of West Chestnut street.

In introducing her remarks Miss Silvercruys was particularly concerned with what the war has done to people, especially the young people between 12 and 17. She feels that the war has destroyed the belief in the sacredness of life, belief in planning for the future, economizing, and stability.

Turn to Arts, She Advises

She proposed as relief for this condition the return to true values in life, "the values we create with ourselves which cannot be taken away." One way could be through self-expression in one of the arts.

Miss Silvercruys recounted some of the unusual experiences she has had in her work as a sculptor. She became interested in the art while she was recovering from tuberculosis. Miss Silvercruys was admitted to the Yale School of Fine Arts where her work won recognition and she was assigned to do a bust of Herbert Hoover. She also spoke of her experiences in doing Jack Dempsey.

Katherine Hepburn, the Dionne quintuplets and Wendell Wilkie, whom she considered the greatest American.

The speaker has an interesting background and lecture experience. During the first World War when she was a small child in Belgium, she assisted Edith Cavell by carrying messages to allied soldiers escaping through the country with the aid of the English nurse. She has been a lecturer since her early teens and a citizen of the United States since 1922. It was in 1925 that she started working with clay.

Life Story in Face

She demonstrated some of the fundamentals of sculpting with sketch material and description of various facial features. In connection with it she said, "In your face your life will be written and the way you have written it."

In conclusion Miss Silvercruys made a strong plea for Americans to pray for leaders with vision to work for peace. She emphasized the need for Americans to make democracy work. She asked all to work together as they did during the war years, to set an example to the rest of the world.

Special guests at the meeting last night were Harold R. Peat, director of the National Dinner Club, his friend, Dr. Louis Wardell of New York city, and Col. Ned Stevenson, husband of the speaker.

Mr. Peat returned for the third year last night as he congratulated the club at the beginning of its third year. He explained the list of suggested speakers for the remainder of the year. Those attending the meeting last night were given ballots on which to select six speakers. The next meeting will be in October.

Harold V. Clayton, new president, presided at the meeting. Rabbi Herbert I. Bloom gave the invocation.

Lieutenant to Retire

Fonda, N. Y., May 21 (AP)—State Police Lt. Edward O. Hageman, 52, former inspector in the Bureau of Criminal Investigation, will retire July 1. Hageman led investigations that solved four bank hold-ups in Rockland and Westchester counties 12 years ago. He joined Troop G, Troy, in 1922 and later served with Troop K, Hawthorne, and Troop A, Batavia. He returned to Troop G last year to head the staff here.

Dinner Club Enters 3rd Year

Kingston National Dinner Club opened its third year Tuesday night at the Governor Clinton Hotel. Shown at the head of the table are seated from left, Harold R. Kingston's extended welcome to the visit of the U.S.S. Noa, largest naval destroyer afloat, was hailed by her captain, Commander R. L. Nolan, as one far surpassing visits to other cities along the eastern seaboard.

More than 2,500 persons were conveyed from the Newcombe dock to the vessel and taken on an extended tour of the large ship. Approximately the same number were crowded on the docks, unable to get aboard yesterday, since taxi-boat facilities were restricted to three craft and accommodations for all visitors curtailed.

Herman Gottfried, local attorney and former naval commander, who arranged the Noa's visit to the city, wishes to extend his apologies to all who were unable to tour the Noa because of the lack of boats to convey them back and forth.

However, a spectacular display of the Noa's beam and searchlights, concentrated on the shore and river craft last night, was witnessed by those on the docks.

Tuesday more than 2,500 people visited the Noa, contrasted with 1,300 who went aboard in Poughkeepsie during her two and one-half days visit there over the week-end.

A tea party was arranged in the Noa's ward room yesterday afternoon at which Mrs. John M. Cashin, Mrs. James Dwyer, Mrs. Al Reina, Mrs. Paul Owen and Mrs. Herman Gottfried attended. Floral decorations banked the walls of the room.

A farewell party was tendered Captain Nolan and crew members at the Golden Rule Inn last night by Mr. Gottfried.

The Noa lifted anchor and sailed down the Hudson this morning, heading for Newport, R. I., from where she will go to a Philadelphia drydock.

The body of Quietness Love, 60, negro, was found this morning at 7:45 o'clock by Lester Barringer and Allen Rose at the former's home in Olive Bridge, one of Father Divine's rest camps.

According to Coroner Arthur Chipp of Kerhonkson Love died of coronary occlusion. Coroner Chipp and Deputy Arthur Smith of the sheriff's office conducted the investigation.

When the body was found this morning Love's radio was still on and it was determined that it had been playing all evening. It was learned that he was a regular listener of the 11 o'clock nightly news broadcasts.

Mr. Hutty then reviewed the arduous efforts made over a period of years in an attempt to secure a one-township centralized school. After many obstacles had been overcome, and a favorable vote received, a petition signed by the Trustees was presented to Mr. Reginald Bennett, District Superintendent, for his signature. One of the trustees present, on this occasion described the scene as that of Mr. Bennett finally signing the petition and saying, "I can see you are determined to have this school." Letters exchanged by the Trustees and State Department of Education were then read.

"District No. 2 never tried to force other districts to do anything . . . only tried to solve their own problems," said Mr. Hutty.
"The advantages of centralized schools were set forth, among them the fact that centralized schools receive more state money than the individual schools provided at a high enough percentage of its actual value."
In the Fall of 1936, a vote taken in the entire Township of Woodstock, resulted in 457 against 87 in favor of a one-township centralized school.
"We, in Woodstock, believe in education. Our need for the past thirteen years has been a better school building," concluded Mr. Hutty.

To Distribute Pamphlets

Edmund Gilligan said "Mr. Chairman I do not wish to ask a question but rather to make an official statement." At the direction of the State Board of Education, a committee has been formed in these three townships to clarify the situation and carry on the process of education. A meeting was held three nights ago at Mount Tremper, at which time Reginald Bennett was elected chairman. I have been elected vice-chairman for Woodstock. The next step will be to prepare pamphlets explaining what is necessary for centralization. Four thousand copies will be printed and distributed to all persons entitled to vote in the election. The proposed centralization will include Olive, Shandaken and Woodstock. In all studies for school centralizations, the first consideration is the pupils and in this instance some 800 to 1,000 pupils will be affected by such centralization. If centralization is approved there will be three trustees from Woodstock, three from Shandaken and three from Olive comprising the new Board of Education. Tax rates will be figured on true valuation. . . . the scene of election will be in a vacant store at Mount Tremper. The election will be carried on in the usual way, with voting machines. Qualification for those who may vote will be carefully described in the pamphlet to be issued. Our answer as to the centralization itself . . . this will be found in the pamphlet and will be the fruit of 180 centralizations which have already taken place in this state. I shall be much surprised if anything is left out.

Says Pamphlet Has Answers

"It is necessary for Mr. Hutty to be convinced that we are all informed because he says the law requires that no election be held until such information has been given to the voters, and I am certain the information in the pamphlet will cover this."
"After the official committee proves to the state commissioner that sufficient information has been given to the public, a petition must be sent to the state commissioner requesting an election. He will not doubt grant this petition. We will then have the election and the matter can be settled. We will be very glad to accept the names of volunteers to further this work of education."

Many questions were then addressed to Mr. Gilligan. Joseph Friedberg questioned the matter of taxes and the advisability of sending Woodstock children to Mt.

Tremper during the winter months.

Fears Road-Hazardous

Dr. Hans Cohn said, "I am travelling those roads between Woodstock and Shandaken, day and night, and when I heard about the possibility of a school in Boiceville, my first thought was how will the children get up to Boiceville on icy roads? We would have to build a new road. I was sliding all over the roads making calls throughout the winter. This road is very bad in the winter. I know from experience." Dr. Cohn's remarks were met with loud applause.

Mr. Gilligan replied, "There is no information existing to the fact that the school will be located at Boiceville, the site has not been selected."

Egan Takes Up Fight

Attorney John E. Egan, a member of the group which has militantly fought for the one township plan in Woodstock then took the floor. He immediately questioned Mr. Gilligan's statement that the latter was a member of an official committee, saying in effect that no one had the right to appoint an "official committee" to decide what was to be done. He further stated, "there is no one authorized to appoint an official committee. You and I are the official committee. They may be a self-proclaimed official committee, but we are actually the official committee because we do the voting."

After stating that he and the other more active members of the group who had been working for the one-township plan were activated by motives of public interest, Mr. Egan challenged statements made by Mr. Gilligan and published in a weekly newspaper, "The Catskill Mountain Star." He said, "I have a copy of a paper here in which he asked himself some questions and when you hear his answers you will be satisfied there is little possibility of a one-township school." The first question related to the cost of the proposed three-township school. Mr. Egan asserted that the answer had been "It may be one million, it may be more, it may be less. No sensible man would estimate the cost." Mr. Egan commented sarcastically upon this answer, and then gave his version of the alleged side-tracking of the one-township petition which had been signed by Superintendent Bennett.

Challenges "Committee"

Mr. Egan closed his remarks with the following statement: "It is apparently a high-handed effort as evidenced by Mr. Gilligan's statement that he is a member of the official committee. Woodstock people do not like steam roller tactics. They like to decide things in the old-fashioned way of going and voting."

Gilligan Would Pay

In answer to a question as to whether the State was providing funds for the publication of the pamphlet which is to be distributed to explain the township centralization plan, Mr. Gilligan volunteered that he, personally, was paying for the printing of this pamphlet.

Later in the meeting District School Superintendent Reginald Bennett spoke about some phases of the previous discussion saying that he was for a three-township plan. Referring to Mr. Hutty's earlier assertion that he had "reluctantly signed" an application for a petition regarding the one-township plan, he said "I made a mistake in signing the application . . . the men who were there know I signed it as a matter of routine. I told them I did not agree."

It was suggested that since the forthcoming election was not only a possibility but a positive matter, the best thing to do was to form a committee to try to influence enough voters in Olive and Shandaken to defeat the proposal. This proposal was met with enthusiasm and a number of people volunteered to visit those townships for the purpose of explaining Woodstock's attitude.

Dodgers Trim Stroudsburg, 5-2; Stretch Lead to 2½ Games

Scherger Hurt, Braun Ousted As Locals Gain Tenth Victory

It may sound like heresy but it seems the Kingston Dodgers are resorting to a traditional Yankee custom of tearing ball games apart with the one big bang.

It happened again in the fifth stanza last night, when "Sugar" Scherger's North Atlantic League leaders scored three runs to start a 5-2 victory march over the powerful Stroudsburg Poconos and today are resting securely on top of the league, two and a half lengths ahead of Mahanoy City.

Approximately 500 cash customers witnessed the most colorful game of the season under the best weather conditions to date. The contest was highlighted by an injury to Manager George Scherger, of Kingston, in the fourth inning and the first blemish of the season. Don Warfield, Dodgers first sacker, was the victim and Umpire Carpenter the villain in the ninth inning.

Cutter Stars in Relief
A sick stint of relief hurling by Ray Cutter salvaged the game for Kingston, after starter Hank Neighbors was routed under a just barrage of extra base blows in the sixth. Cutter, a smooth working operator who throws a curve ball that jumps, worked the last three and two-thirds innings, permitting only two hits and striking out five.

The hitting highlight was Knobby Rosa's third home run of the season, a sharp drive to deep right center. It rolled to the 421-foot marker on the embankment and Rosa beat the relay to the plate by three yards.

Manager Scherger's injury to his right leg sustained in a close play at first base in the fourth was not serious and the Kingston skipper is expected back in the lineup tonight.

Pocono Loses Homer
Dave Taylor, Stroudsburg center, prepped the mightiest clout of the season to right center in the sixth but unfortunately overlooked the formality of teaching third base and a clean home run went for only a double. The ball landed in the cinder track and rolled to the 421-foot.

Dodgers Explode
For the second night in succession, the Dodgers exploded in the fifth inning, after being virtually handcuffed in the first four frames. Chet Ross, Stroudsburg fireballer, retired the first 13 men to face him and had a hitless, runless performance for four hits. Then came the deluge. Jerry Orlanum rapped a single to center and went to second on a wild pitch. Myers was given a single when Ross bobbled his bunt near the pitcher's box. Rudy Antonetz grounded to third. Charles and Myers moved, and Neighbors executed a beautiful drag bunt past Ross, scoring Orlanum with the first run of the game. Myers scored on a double steal and when second baseman Kopsie bumbled Rosa's grounder, Neighbors tallied the third run.

Neighbors Lifted
Hank "Doc" Neighbors, the intellectual of the Dodge hurling corps, was in trouble in the second and third and finally got his lumps in the sixth. He fanned the pitcher, Ross, with the bases loaded in the second and was aided by sharp Dodge fielding in the third. Stroudsburg unleashed the

Curves in Girls' League Expected To Draw 500,000

Chicago, May 21 (AP)—If you think baseball is a man's game, then you haven't seen the curves in the National Girls' Baseball League.

More than 100 lassies from 21 states and Canada begin playing professional baseball in Chicago tonight at salaries ranging from $40 to $100 weekly.

At four well-manicured parks, where box seats are priced at 85 cents and general admission to 60 cents, six teams of the league will play a 90-game night schedule before winding up the season on Labor Day.

Total attendance is expected to top 500,000, an increase of 20 percent from last year and five times the inaugural gate of 1945.

With the sport entering the realm of big business, Red Grange of Illinois, has been installed as league commissioner at an undisclosed salary.

Money has been pumped into the four playing fields, spattered throughout the city in lively competition to outdo each other in attractiveness, comfort and convenience, and now television has picked up the trail and will shoot many of the games.

Parity Is Top Stadium
Foremost in the "Dress Parade" is the Parity Stadium, home of the Bloomer Girls. The other five clubs are called the Bluebirds, Cardinals, Chicks, Queens and Music Maids. Emery Parity, a roofing and paint magnate, has unfolded a $50,000 in the last three years enlarging and grooming his park. Seating capacity is 4,500.

His girls' dressing room—A somewhat gaudy red and white affair replete with individual shower rooms, clothes closets, shoe racks and a theatrical mirrored dressing table—set him back $7,500 this season.

Club owners like to theorize that their professional league has opened new careers for the girls at better money. Of the more than 100 who are under contract at least 80 are from outside Chicago. About 35 of them augment their baseball salary as stenographers, beauty parlor operators and factory assembly line jobbers.

If they want the feminine angle, the average girl baseball player is 22 years old, 5 feet 5 inches tall, weighs 127 pounds and wears red fingernail polish.

1,305 Names Posted

New York, May 21 (AP)—The National Open is fast getting back to prewar proportions, if the size of the entry list for the 1947 tournament is any indication. When entries closed yesterday, the names of 1,305 golfers had been posted for the qualifying round June 2 that will sift out 126 for the championship field at the St. Louis Country Club June 12-14. Another 45, exempt from the sectional trials to be held at 26 sites throughout the country, qualify automatically, bringing the total entry to 1,350, second largest in the 47-year history of the classic.

Local Mound Ace Faces Only 25 Batters in Game

Clark Mains, the mealticket for Coach Willard Burke's Kingston High School baseball team, was on the threshold of entering the local hall of fame Tuesday when he hurled hitless ball for five innings. A scratch single in the sixth deprived him of the glory, however, but Kingston went on to win the ball game over Beacon by 2 to 0 with a pair of runs in the eighth inning.

Play Home Today
Kingston returns to the municipal stadium this afternoon, weather permitting, for a tussle with Coach Larry Cahill's Saugerties High School team. Game time is slated for 4 o'clock.

Originally scheduled for an abbreviated tilt of seven stanzas, the game was an extra inning affair as both clubs were scoreless at the end of seven. Then in the top half of the eighth the Maroons put together a trio of hits and a balk to push two runs across which proved to be the winning margin.

Mains, who chalked up his third success in four tries Tuesday, pitched a magnificent game all the way. Outside of a blooper single by his opposing hurler, Brescia, the youthful Maroon flinger retired the side in order in every other frame except the sixth.

Brescia's lone bingle which robbed Mains of a no-hitter came in the sixth when he cracked a short fly over second. Ken Lowe, centerfielder, dashed in for the pill but it fell in safely for a single. After that blow, Mains again had Beacon eating out of his hand.

The Burkemen, who gathered eight hits off the offerings of Brescia and Charakalis, finally hit pay dirt in the eighth when Mike Rienzo slammed a single. Bob Ghearr, the big first sacker, followed with a long double which scored Rienzo with the first run. Ken Lowe followed with another one-baser and when relief chucker Charakalis balked, Ghearr trotted across with the second and final run of the ball game.

Love Leads Batters
Ken Lowe led the eight-hit assault on the two Beacon pitchers with three hits. Mike Rienzo followed with a pair of bingles.

Dodgers Trim Stroudsburg, 5-2; Stretch Lead to 2½ Games

Scherger Hurt, Braun Ousted As Locals Gain Tenth Victory

It may sound like heresy but it seems the Kingston Dodgers are resorting to a traditional Yankee custom of tearing ball games apart with the one big inning.

It happened again in the fifth stanza last night, when "Sugar" Scherger's North Atlantic League leaders scored three runs to start a 5-2 victory march over the powerful Stroudsburg Poconos and today are resting securely on top of the league, two and a half lengths ahead of Mahanoy City.

Approximately 500 cash customers witnessed the most colorful game of the season under the best weather conditions to date. The contest was highlighted by an injury to Manager George Scherger, of Kingston, in the fourth inning and the first banishment of the season. Don Warfield, Dodgers first sacker, was the victim and Umpire Carpenter the villain in the ninth inning.

Cutter Stars in Relief

A slick stint of relief hurling by Ray Cutter salvaged the game for Kingston, after starter Hank Rosa was routed under a lusty barrage of extra base blows in the sixth. Cutter, a smooth working operator who throws a curve ball that jumps, worked the last three and two-thirds innings, permitting only two hits and striking out five.

The batting highlight was Knobby Rosa's third home run of season, a sharp drive to deep right center. It rolled to the 421-foot marker on the embankment and Rosa beat the relay to the plate by three yards.

Manager Scherger's injury to his right leg sustained in a close play at first base in the fourth inning is not serious and the Kingston skipper is expected back in the lineup tonight.

Pocono Loses Homer

Dave Taylor, Stroudsburg center, propelled the mightiest clout of the season to right center in the sixth but unfortunately overlooked the formality of touching third base and a clean home run went for only a double. The ball landed in the cinder track and rolled to the 421-stick.

Dodgers Explode

For the second night in succession, the Dodgers exploded in the fifth inning, after being virtually handcuffed in the first four frames. Chet Ross, Stroudsburg fireballer, retired the first 11 men to face him and had a hitless, runless performance for four heats. Then came the deluge. Jerry Orleman rapped a single to center and went to second on a wild pitch. Myers was given a single when Ross bobbled his bunt near the pitcher's box. Rudy Antonietz ground to third, Orleman and Myers moving up. Neighbors executed a beautiful drag bunt past Ross, scoring Orleman with the first run of the game. Myers scored on a double steal and won second baseman Kopsic bumbled Rosa's grounder. Neighbors tallied the third run.

Neighbors Lifted

Hank "Deacon" Neighbors, the intellectual of the Dodger hurling corps, was in trouble in the second and third and finally got his lumps in the sixth. He fanned the pitcher, Ross, with the bases loaded in the second and was aided by sharp Dodger fielding in the third. Stroudsburg unleashed the gaudiest slugging spree of the season in the sixth. Taylor whacked a 3-2 pitch for the circuit but forgot to touch second. Warner laced a drive to left center and fast fielding by Brian Kerr held it to a single. Martling's triple to the light tower in left center scored Warner and exited Neighbors. Voice slammed Cutter's first pitch along the left field foul line for a double, driving in Martling but the Dodger ace took over from there on out.

Kingston picked up two consolation markers in the eighth when Rosa homered with Kerr aboard.

DODGER DOINGS—Knobby

Rosa moved to second when "Sugar" Scherger was rendered hors de combat and Jim Williams took over at third. Stroudsburg sixth inning performance was top batting exhibition to date.

Fielding gem of the game: Dave Myers' sensational pickup of Warner's scorcher to short and getting a force play at second. Brian Kerr made a neat running catch of Ryan's sinking liner to left to end the game.

Dodger home record: five straight wins. Club now has modest streak of four straight. Warren Smith clipped for two fountain pens. Ken Braun was bounced when he objected to Umpire Carpenter's decision on a pickoff at first base in the ninth.

From where we sat, it looked like Cutter had the runner picked off first. Carpenter is a colorful umpire, worth the price of admission alone. Kingston's speed on the bases driving rival clubs loco. Rosa's circuit clout came off reliever Page, a southpaw. Weather was clear but slightly cool. The crowd was largest to date. Stroudsburg on tap again tonight at 8:15.

Buddy Poppies Are To Go on Sale Here Saturday, May 24

Chairman F. Colao of Joyce-Schirick Post poppy drive has announced that Saturday is the day on which the V.F.W. Buddy Poppies will go on sale locally.

"We will have a large sales force operating throughout the city," he said, "and hope that this year's campaign will be as successful as those in past years."

Chairman Colao stressed that Buddy Poppies are made by wounded and disabled patients in veterans' hospitals and "represent a tribute of fighting men to the memory of their fallen comrades."

He added, "Wherever Buddy Poppies are sold, those who purchase them are assured that the proceeds realized are used exclusively for the aid, benefit and relief of disabled and needy veterans and their dependents."

Sale of Buddy Poppies started in May 1922 and each year there is a Buddy Poppy Girl. This year the honor belongs to the child movie star, Margaret O'Brien.

Buddy Poppies Are To Go on Sale Here Saturday, May 24

Chairman F. Colao of Joyce-Schrick Post poppy drive has announced that Saturday is the day on which the V.F.W. Buddy Poppies will go on sale locally.

"We will have a large sales force operating throughout the city," he said, "and hope that this year's campaign will be as successful as those in past years."

Chairman Colao stressed that Buddy Poppies are made by wounded and disabled patients in veterans' hospitals and "represent a tribute of fighting men to the memory of their fallen comrades." He added, "Wherever Buddy Poppies are sold, those who purchase them are assured that the proceeds realized are used exclusively for the aid, benefit and relief of disabled and needy veterans and their dependents."

Sale of Buddy Poppies started in May 1922 and each year there is a Buddy Poppy Girl. This year the honor belongs to the child movie star, Margaret O'Brien.

Chairman Colao stressed that Buddy Poppies are made by wounded and disabled patients in veterans' hospitals and "represent a tribute of fighting men to the memory of their fallen comrades." He added, "Wherever Buddy Poppies are sold, those who purchase them are assured that the proceeds realized are used exclusively for the aid, benefit and relief of disabled and needy veterans and their dependents."
